2018 Plan

Present Day

Millennium Park began concept development in 2016, and in 2018, a document was published showing a detailed plan for the park. This process included extensive public consultation, including public input on what design and features would be most preferred, and reflected the wishes of the community.

In December of 2023, this original plan was scrapped, and city council abruptly chose the "high development" option out of 3 concepts presented to them. This plan then prompted the first reading of the $20.8 million borrowing bylaw to fund this version of a redesigned Millennium Park, spurring the petition of April 2024.
